Bio:

Jean Rhys (mainly from the World of Penguin)

- creole identity and a drifting life: Jean Rhys was born in Dominica in 1890, the daughter of a Welsh doctor and a white Creole mother. She came to England when she was sixteen and then drifted into a series of jobs - chorus girl, mannequin, artist's model - after her father died.
- Start to write in her thirties: She began to write when the first of her three marriages broke up. She was in her thirties by then, and living in Paris, where she was encouraged by Ford Madox Ford, who also discovered D. H. Lawrence. Ford wrote an enthusiastic introduction to her first book in 1927, a collection of stories called The Left Bank. This was followed by Quartet (originally Postures, 1928), After Leaving Mr Mackenzie (1930), Voyage in the Dark (1934) and Good Morning, Midnight (1939). None of these books was particularly successful, perhaps because they were decades ahead of their time in theme and tone, dealing as they did with women as underdogs, exploited and exploiting their sexuality.
- Characters a self-reflection of Rhys? Her first four novels are said to portray the same woman (with different names and minor details) at different stages of life, all drifting, unhappy, unstable, but with clear self-knowledge and understanding of others.
- With the outbreak of war and subsequent failure of Good Morning, Midnight, the books went out of print and Jean Rhys literally dropped completely from sight. It was generally thought that she was dead. Nearly twenty years later she was rediscovered,

EDUCATION

That Jackson County has kept pace with the educa-ional progress in the state for more than a century,
an be gleaned from the following chapter upon this ubject.

Early in 1820, public spirited citizens of this ection saw the necessity of schools, and the resultant dvantages that would accrue therefrom. They exerted very energy, were liberal in subscriptions, encouraged he promotion of educational institutions, and were not emiss in any duty toward the fulfillment of the desired
nd - more knowledge.

That their soul ambitions have been realized, is erified by the fact that Jackson County's Schools now ank with the best, and it will elate you to read of the eadway that has been made.

SCHOOLS OF YESTERDAY

The first school was built by Valentine Delmas, a ost progressive citizen, at the settlement on Pascagoula iver. He came from New Orleans in 1800, erected a school n 1820 - just north of the old Frederick de St. Feral ome (later erected in 1829), and hired the first teach-r, Frederick de St. Feral, at a salary of $600 per year.
ll children were invited to attend, and were made welome without pay. Mr. Feral was well qualified, having eceived his education in France. He was also a civil ngineer and laid out the greater part of Old Scranton ith the aid of Valentine Delmas (See Chap. 1, Formation).

When, some years later, Frederick went to New rleans, his wife, the eldest daughter of Valentine Delmas, illed his position in the school.

After her husband's death in 1840, Mrs. Frederick,
eft with five children, taught a private school in her ome. To her children she gave the rudiments of their ducation, and in time, her eldest daughter, Josephine, aught until her marriage to Mr. Donovan, when she conucted a private school in her home. This lasted until he building of the old Scranton Academy, where she was ne of the first teachers. (1)

1) Charles Delmas, and Miss Bella Delmas, Pascagoula, Miss.

Early in 1850, a committee of the Grant, Krebs, and Delmas families, and all others of the Pascagoula district who were financially able, organized a school, located on a tract of land in Grant's Lane. Capt. John Grant paid for the erection of a teachers' home, a school building, and a church, chiefly for the education of his eleven grandchildren. These grounds extended from where Oliver Cole's home now stands, on Grant Street, to the corner lot now owned by T. R. Swartwout, on which the church building stood. Captain Grant was a Baptist, but gave this building for religious worship for no certain denomination. Sunday school and day school were also held here; the latter building stood near the site of the home now owned by Ed. Mayo, on Grant Street.

The committee advertised for teachers, among the first of whom was a Mr. Kidwell from Virginia, who boarded with the H. Krebs family. He came in 1852 and remained four years, his first pupils being from the Grant, Krebs, and Delmas families. Other pupils, who came from East side, Bayou Cassotte, and other districts, were from the families of Southern, Ladnier, Johnson, and Deas. The second teacher, a Mr. Wheeler, remained four years, and was succeeded by Mrs. Mars of Mobile, Alabama, who was teaching when the war started in 1860.

After the War between the States, Mary Louise Grant, who finished her education in Mobile, taught in this school, continuing for some years. Rachel B. Grant, educated in New Orleans, followed Mary Louise Grant. The exact date or reason for discontinuance of this school is not known, but the buildings were torn down and the lumber used - new and first class - for homes. (1)

Mrs. Jennie Batiste conducted a private school in the old Batiste Home on Batiste Bayou and Pascagoula Bay Front for several years. Among the pupils who attended, about 1871, were Del and Lou Greiner, and Mary and Lena Hall. Mrs. Batiste discontinued her classes to become the first teacher at the Beach school, but as soon as the four months session was over, she re-opened the private school in her home.(2)

In 1873, C. H. Alley provided a private teacher, Miss Azalene McKay, of Moss Point, for his three children, Lizzie, Jennie, Robert, and two nieces,

The Church is the spiritual mother of all the Faithful. As a human mother stands at the side of a sick child to give comfort and to relieve pain, so the Church comes to the side of her sick and dying children with the Sacrament of Extreme Unction.

Death

Death should not be a tragedy for the Christian. A Christian lives for another world; here on earth he is a pilgrim. The day of his death should be for the Christian a day of great joy, for on that day he goes to his lasting home, which is heaven.

Delmas-Geerken

One of the pretty weddings of the season was the marriage on Thursday morning at 8 o'clock of Mr. John Baptiste Delmas, and Miss Gertrude Henrietta Geerken, both of South Pascagoula. The church of Our Lady of Victories was beautifully decorated with potted palms and little pine trees, and trailing greenery that traced their graceful lovliness over the chancel rail and screen and the alt rs were ablaze with the soft illumination of numerous lighted candles. As the joyous wedding march, played by Sister Catherine of the Convent of Perpetual Adoration, filled the church Miss Katherine Delmas, the sister of the groom, entered the church and immediately following her were the bride and her father, who gave her to be married. They were met at the chancel by the groom and his best man, his brother, Mr. Salisbury Delmas, and the bridal party proceeded to the altar where Father Bernard O'Reilly impressively performed the beautiful ceremony. During the signing of the register Sister Catherine rendered Schuman's always beautiful "Traumerie," and following that a spirited recessional. The lovely bride was handsomely attired in a suit of green chiffon broadcloth trimmed with fur and wore a becoming hat to match. Her gloves were brown and she carried a black prayer book and rosary. The maid of honor was lovely in a beautiful costume of brown broadcloth.

The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Geerken who located here several years ago and made their home at Biltless Plantation at Bayou Casotte, and is a young lady of unusual lovliness and many accomplishments. Mr. Delmas is the son of Mrs. Cora B. Del and is a member of the firm of J mas Brothers, who have made sc tific farming and dairying such a pronounced success in Pascagoula. He is a young man of splendid character and unusual ability and a member of one of the oldest and most prominent families of Pascagoula.

After the ceremony at the church to which there were no cards, a wedding breakfast was served to the immediate families of the bridal couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Delmas will reside at their farm at Bayou Casotte. The out of town guests attending the wedding were Misses Elise Francke, Miss Amelia Schott and Mr. Thos. W. Ktacke of New Orleans.
